OPPOSITION HERE TO PROPOSED CHANGE IN FLORIDA FISH LAWS

THE "PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION"
WANTS TO AMEND REGULA-TIONS SO THAT SEINES AND NETS MAY BE USED.

An effort on the part of the "Fish Protective Association of Florida" to promote sentiment favorable to the revision of the state's present fishing laws is meeting strong opposition in Daytona and vicinity, and a petition asking the legislature to allow the existing statute to remain in force is being circulated by Larue M. Williams. A large number of signatures have been obtained, and it seems that the proposed alteration of the law will meet but slight favor in this locality.

The headquarters of the "Fish Protective Association of Florida" is at Welaka. Dr. D. C. Main, of that place, is president of the organization, which has been very active lately in trying to create sentiment favorable to its project. The new law the association hopes to have enacted would permit fishing, except during the spawning season, with seines, gill nets, round nets, purse nets, and hoop or wire nets, upon payment of certain stipulated license fees. The present law prohibits this, and the people of this section of the state appear to be strongly opposed to the proposition looking to a renewal of the seining and netting privilege, feeling that such a course would be unwise, and in the end destructive to the fishing interests of the state.

It is claimed by the "Fish Protective Association of Florida" that the proposed new regulations have the endorsement of E. Z. Jones, state game and fish commissioner, and other prominent officials. The draft of the bill, prepared by the association's attorney, J. C. Calhoun, of Palatka, follows:

Section 1. It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to catch, transport or be in the possession of, or catch for the purpose of shipping any fresh water fish between April 30th and October 1st of any year, except as hereinafter provided for. Providing for a conservation fund to be used for the fulfilling of the purposes of this act.

Sec. 2. That no person or persons shall deliver or receive for transportation or transport any package, box or other receptacle containing any fish unless it be labeled in plain letters showing owner or consignor, kind or kinds of fish, and weight or count.

Sec. 3. Licenses for residents and non-residents:

	Res.	Non-Res.
Seine for shad or herring, per annum	$10.00	$100.00
Gill net for shad or herring, per annum	5.00	100.00
Round net for herring, per annum	5.00	25.00
Gill net for mullet, per annum	5.00	25.00
Up to 400 yards seine for other fish, per annum	10.00	100.00
400 yards to 800 yards for other fish, per annum	20.00	200.00
Purse net not over 300 yards, per annum	10.00	100.00
Purse net over 300 yards, per annum	25.00	300.00
Hoop or wire nets each, per annum	.50	1.00

Any vessel fishing in the waters beyond the limits of the state of Florida and bringing into the state fish for shipping or transportation shall pay an annual license of fifty cents per ton based net tonnage registered of such vessel.

Sec. 4. Any person caught taking any fresh water fish except with hook and line between the 30th day of April and the first day of October of the same year shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to fine or imprisonment.

FOUND COLD WEATHER IN THE QUAKER STATE

J. F. DONOVAN WRITES OF CHILLY

WEATHER IN QUAKER CITY—IF BACK IN DAYTONA WOULD STAY TWO WEEKS LATER.

J. F. Donovan, who left Daytona last week in company with Mrs. Donovan for their home in Atlantic City, N. J., writes as follows from Philadelphia, March 29th, to the assistant editor: "My wife and I arrived in Jacksonville, Saturday morning and were pleasantly surprised to meet Connie Mack and his wife, who, with the team are staying at the Burbridge hotel. We were the guests of Connie at the ball game at Barrs field, Saturday afternoon, and enjoyed the game immensely, as the score was 3-2 in favor of the Athletics.

We arrived in Philadelphia on Monday morning. It is quite cold this morning, Tuesday, and if we were back in Daytona we would stay there two weeks longer. We will be here for three days and then leave for "Home, Sweet Home," Atlantic City.

I am writing this in Wanamaker's store and it is quite cold, at least I feel it so after living all winter in a mild climate."

Mr. Donovan, it will be noticed, makes the statement that if back in Daytona they would remain here for two weeks longer, and numbers of others who have gone north are feeling just that way. It seems useless to argue the matter, but it is a mistake made every spring by thousands of people, this going north before cold weather is over. Of course in some cases business requires an early return and the chance must be taken of meeting bad weather, but with a majority of the people there is nothing to require their leaving here so early and April is the pleasantest month of the year in Florida and May is frequently almost as good.

EGG HUNT FOR THE CHILDREN OF CITY

On Saturday afternoon there will be an egg hunt for the children of the city, given under the direction of Pastor Rightmire of the Baptist church. Mr. Rightmire has directed such affairs in other cities and given much pleasure to the boys and girls. The hunt will begin from the Baptist church at 2:00 p. m. In order to participate in the hunt it will be necessary for each boy and girl to wear the official badge. These badges will be furnished free to all who apply to Mr. Rightmire just before 2:00 o'clock. No badges will be given out until just before the hour of starting. There will be several eggs of special value to the finder. The hunt will last from 2:00 until 3:00 o'clock, after which all will be given a stereopticon entertainment in the church. The entertainment will consist of a series of pictures of places of beauty and interest in this beautiful country of ours. Only boys and girls of 14 years and under will be allowed to hunt eggs but all will be welcome to see the pictures. The sole object of the hunt is a little unique entertainment for the boys and girls and will be made an annual affair. In case of rain it will take place on Monday afternoon at the close of the afternoon session of school, with the same program as outlined above.

The rainfall of Thursday night and this morning is reported by J. G. Brown as .74 inches. It put a damper on pretty much everything including the board of trade picnic for the Brooklyn baseball team.

DAYTONA, FLORIDA

A Woman's Eye
For a Defensive Position

By SADIE OLCOTT.

My husband being away from home a great deal and our house being in the country, he proposed that I keep a pistol within reach. I told him that I would be more afraid of the pistol than an enemy, but he said that quite likely if I were cornered I would surprise myself. He had been a soldier in the Spanish-American war and had learned by experience that under the excitement of battle one forgets danger.

He bought me a revolver, first showed me how it worked with empty chambers, then filled them. We had an old fashioned batrack in the hall, with a little box on it for a hat brush. Tom said the box would be a good place to keep the revolver. There was a lid to it with hinges, and the weapon would be concealed there. If any one came to the house with evil intent he would come to the door and I could take up the revolver before opening it. All of which was very fine, but I was sure that I would never have the nerve to shoot any one.

The thing remained in the box for three years. I never passed it without a shudder. One day a tramp came along and asked for food. I didn't like his looks and would have told him to move on, but I was afraid of him. I gave him something to eat, and while eating he was taking in the situation. When he had finished the meal, which it was plain he didn't want, he arose from the table and, instead of leaving, deliberately walked upstairs.

I was frightened out of my wits. I was willing that he should take everything in the house if he would only let me alone. I heard him rummaging upstairs and knew that he was helping himself to my valuables. It did not take long for my mind to be turned from fear to indignation at the man's appropriating my belongings. There were some articles of value among them, but what excited my anger was the thought that he would take my engagement ring, which I had left on the bureau in my bedroom. Tom had given it to me when he was poor, and it had cost very little money, but I prized it far beyond anything I had.

Listening to the man rummaging, I became more and more indignant till at last I got mad, not angry, but mad. That's the only word to express my feelings.

Then I thought a bit. The man would come down the staircase after taking what he wanted. It occurred to me that with a revolver in my hand I would have a great advantage over him. I lifted the lid of the box, but drew back. The pistol looked so dead. Then I put my hand on it and took it out, holding it from me.

At that moment I heard the man in the hall above, and I concluded that if I were going to save my property I had better be up and doing. The thought of his going away with my engagement ring put nerve into me, and I fixed my attention on enough of it for my purpose—on the revolver, but, still holding it away from me, cocked it.

The living room door was hung in such a way that when it was open I could stand in the angle it made with the wall and through the space left between door and wall see up the staircase and be largely protected. I ran into the living room, took up a position behind my improvised fortress and put the muzzle of the revolver through the opening. When the man appeared at the head of the stairs I thought I was going to faint, but the sight of a lot of my things he had in his hands and his bulging pockets made me forget fright in a desire to save them.

"You just drop those things!" I called in an angry voice. The man stopped and looked about him for the person who had spoken. I rattled the revolver against the door. He saw it, and a change came over him.

"Drop them!" I shouted. He dropped what he had in his hands on the steps.

"Now empty your pockets." He did as I directed.

"Turn them inside out." He obeyed.

"Now walk out the front door." He obeyed with alacrity.

By this time I was brave as a lion and was seized with a desire to punish him. After he had passed out through the door I followed him and pointed the revolver at him. In my excitement I unintentionally pulled the trigger. He started to run.

At the moment a man in a buggy drove by and, hearing the shot and seeing the man run, took after him, but the pursued turned, pulled a pistol and fired at his pursuer, who, being unarmed, gave up the chase.

Tom came home before my protector left. He told Tom that I had fired at the man and missed him. I was a marvel of courage, and he was sure that if I had not been hampered by skirts I would have followed the tramp and shot him.

This was all very fine, but as soon as the fracas was over I dropped into a chair in the hall in a tremor, at the same time throwing the revolver as far from me as I was able.

When I told Tom the story as I have told it here he said I should have been a man and a soldier—my eye for military position was remarkable. He never would have thought of the crack between the door and the wall as an admirable defensive position.

TRENCHES ONE TURN

Hospital Next for Some of Canadian Soldiers.

Could Neither Sit Nor Stand in Mud-Filled Ditches Under Heavy Fire for Three Weary Nights and Days.

London.—The discomfort and even actual suffering caused by doing only one turn in the trenches is described by a Canadian soldier in Princess Patricia's Light Infantry in a letter written at the front. Such was the condition of the troops that some of the men hardly were able to crawl from the trenches when the relief hour arrived. With too much mud to sit down and the trench too shallow to stand up straight, the troop was in a difficult position. The letter, which was printed in the London Times, says:

"We left the place from which I last wrote, marched 15 miles and billeted in a barn. The following day we marched 12 miles to within about three miles of the trenches, which we entered late at night, relieving some French troops. We stayed 48 hours in the trenches, or rather ditches, as they're little better, and such a time I never experienced in my life.

"It was raining most of the time, sniping was going on all night, and in the daytime we were subjected to a most awful bombardment, especially on the first day, shells exploding near my trench sometimes in bunches of six. Mud and pieces of shrapnel fell quite close several times. The shells from the German big guns burst with a terrible din and fairly made the earth quake, our trenches caving in in many places from the severe concussions.

"We of my platoon consider ourselves very lucky indeed, as we suffered the hottest shell fire along the line occupied by the battalion, but fortunately the German gunners had too much elevation, which resulted in the shells, with two or three exceptions, falling over and clear of the trenches. The German trenches opposite our position were only 120 yards away, but very little rifle fire was indulged in, everyone on both sides keeping well under cover.

"The bottom of the trenches in most places is just ankle deep in mud. We sat on our equipment, which was soon smothered in wet, cold mud, and in a deplorable state. But it saved us from actually sitting in the mud, and one could not stand upright, as the trench was not deep enough. Of course sleep was practically impossible, though most of us negotiated 40 winks at intervals when not on watch.

"Our feet were wet through the whole time, also our nether garments. During the long nights we just longed for daylight, although we knew it would bring a renewal of the bombardment. Some of our men were hardly able to crawl out of the trenches when our turn came to be relieved.

"I hardly think human flesh could possibly stand the conditions prevailing more than three days at the most. The night we came out and into billets I put on dry socks. I had the most peculiar sensations in my feet all that night—a kind of pins and needles. This, I suppose, was the returning of circulation.

"My hands were also much swollen, but two days' rest soon put me all right again. I feel absolutely none the worse for my experience, but some of the men had to go to hospital, and others were unfit to march and had to ride in transports. I myself have been able to stay with the best of them, although I am the oldest man in the section.

"We occupied the trenches on the night of the fifth and were relieved on the night of the eighth. Twenty of us are billeted in what you would call a country public house and sleep in the kitchen on the floor, by far the most comfortable digs we have had so far.

"I was much struck by the behavior of the boys who had never been under fire before; in fact, I was surprised. Of course we all realize that we carry our lives in our hands and I think the most of us don't worry. We found time to laugh and joke while the shells were bursting overhead and quite a few uncomplimentary remarks were addressed at the German gunners on their indifferent marksmanship."

RABBITS KILL FRUIT TREES

Much Damage Done to Wisconsin Orchards by Hungry Tribe of Molly Cottontails.

Beaver Dam, Wis.—You've heard of the Kansas grasshopper which destroys trees by kicking them to pieces, but Beaver Dam has a tribe of rabbits that is killing fruit trees and berry bushes by devouring them. Of course, they don't masticate the whole thing, but they are gnawing the bark away in rings and the trees and bushes are sure to die. The severe cold weather and deep snow of a short time ago is blamed for their voracious appetites. Several hundred dollars' damage has been done already.

Adaptability of Brain.

Each vocation makes a different call upon the brain and develops faculties and qualities peculiar to itself, so that as the various professions, trades and specialties multiply, the brain takes on new adaptive qualities, thus giving greater variety and strength to civilization as a mass. When the world was young the brain of man was very primitive, because the demand upon it was largely for self-protection and the acquisition of food, which called only for the development of its lower, its animal part. As civilization advanced, however, there was a higher call upon the brain and more varied development, until today, in the highest civilization, it has become exceedingly complex.—Success Magazine.

Gulls and Some Men.

In a great ship's wake flew a flock of gulls, now soaring aloft, anon swooping to seize a bit of garbage. Mile after mile they pursued the ship, shrieking, soaring or fighting over a piece of spoil. For every one that tired of the long quest and withdrew to rest on the water, two others with ravenous appetites seemed to join in the chase. At times the whirl of their flapping wings and the chorus of their raucous screams made a din eclipsing the noise of the ship's propellers. And all they got for their strident effort was an occasional discard from the kitchen. They reminded one of the human retinue of a man of wealth; the chaps who hang around to cash in on a dropped tip or snatch greedily a financial crumb. Indeed, the comparison rather favored the feathered followers, for the gulls are useful as scavengers—they help to keep the waters clean.

Okeechobee Farms

Will yield big crops of corn, cane, cowpeas, velvet beans, rape, peanuts, kudzu, spineless cactus, besides raising Bermuda, Rhodes, Para, Natal and other grasses for hay and pasture. With all these crops available, cattle, sheep and hogs can have good food the year 'round.

Thousands of Acres of Our Land at the North End of Lake Okeechobee Are Now Ready for Cultivation

These lands do not need draining other than small ditches necessary on any farm. Make a trip to Okeechobee on the new division of the Florida East Coast Railway without delay, and see for yourself just what these lands are. Not that Okeechobee is now only a trifle over twelve hours' journey from Jacksonville.

THE GREAT CONFLICT

THE GERMAN VIEW.
(By Hugo von Kleist.)

On the pretext that rubber and copper may be smuggled into ships destined for European ports, Great Britain has now undertaken an examination of cotton shipments. At the ports of Galveston and New York, agents of the British government subject bales of cotton export to X-Ray machines, issuing certificates (of the British government) to the captains of the vessels carrying shipments passed upon. The hatches of ships carrying cotton, whatever their nationality, are sealed by British or French consular representatives.

Shall American business continue inertly and supinely to submit to England's shameful and humiliating espionage? Will the government of the United States permit the interference on the part of Great Britain with its rubber and wool trades by restrictions said to be in flagrant violation of national laws? Will the department of state ignore the absolute crippling of our copper industry which amounts to 60 per cent. of the world's supply? Shall Great Britain be permitted to hold shipments of copper, worth millions of dollars, the disposition of which is unknown, knowledge being denied the owners? Shall our neutral copper trade be wiped out, or shall we as an alternative submit to Britain's agents, or at an exorbitant commission, or to British manufacturers at their own prices?

Under these insufferable indignities and insults, affecting our whole commercial life, the press of the United States has remained silent, or, if it had expressed itself, has been temporizing, conciliatory, wheedling, weak and sickeningly sycophantic.

GARDNER-HILLQUIT DEBATE

THE ALLIES' VIEW.
(By Alfred W. Bryce.)

Postmaster-General Burleson's ruling on shipments of food to Germany in 11-pound packages by parcel post is so sound that it is likely to prove offensive to the people who started the movement. We can hardly believe that anybody seriously hopes in this feeble and uncertain manner to relieve economic conditions affecting millions of people beyond the Rhine. A more reasonable explanation of the enterprise is that it was started with the expectation of involving us in difficulties with Great Britain and France.

Mr. Burleson's instructions are that foodstuffs be accepted at the risk of the sender, and that, so far as the action of belligerent nations are concerned, foodstuffs and merchandise in the mails will be on the same footing as like commodities sent by freight or express. To make this meaning even clearer, he asks all shippers of food or other contraband to separate it wholly from other ordinary mail matter.

There need be no doubt whatever that the government of the United States will insist upon the full rights of its mail service everywhere, but there should be no reason to suppose it will undertake by that method to provision nations at war.

LIFT FOOT AND MOUTH

QUARANTINE IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, April 2.—The foot and mouth quarantine is now lifted in every county in Illinois. It was stated at the office of the state veterinarian today that the last of the infected herds have been killed.

SUPERBA PICNIC HAD TO BE CALLED OFF; DAMP, BAD WEATHER

For perfectly good and entirely sufficient reasons there was no picnic at Mosquito Inlet today.

First, it rained; then it rained some more; and then it rained some more.

Second, nobody was brave enough to undertake the trip. Therefore, the boats did not leave the dock. Consequently there was nobody down at the Inlet to participate in the festivities. And it is well known that a picnic without picnickers is an extremely tame affair.

Laying aside these feeble attempts at facetiousness (the disappointment is too keen, anyhow, to be treated lightly), it is a matter of sincere and general regret that the board of trade picnic for the Brooklyn baseball club had to be called off. The entertainment committee and the secretary had worked faithfully to provide a really delightful outing for the ball boys and their friends, and it is certain that the affair would have been one pleasantly remembered by all who participated in it.

The Brooklyn team leaves Daytona tomorrow for Jacksonville, and from there will go, via Richmond, to Brooklyn. Perhaps the board of trade will have an opportunity to give the Superbas an excursion when they return next winter.

WEEK'S CELEBRATION OF CANAL OPENING

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—

The dedication of the Dalles-Cello canal of the Columbia river, Oregon, the date for which is set for Wednesday, May 5, 1915, will mark the opening of a continuous free waterway from the Pacific ocean inland a distance of 479 miles to Lewiston, Idaho, on the Snake river, a tributary of the Columbia, and to Priest Rapids, on the Columbia, a distance of 450 miles. The completion of the canal is deemed of such importance that citizens of the Pacific northwest states have prepared a series of celebrations running through the entire week of May 3-8, including special programs at Lewiston, Idaho; Pasco, Kennewick, Walla Walla and Wallula, Washington; Pendleton and Umatilla, Oregon; Maryhill and Goldendale, Washington; The Dalles and Big Eddy, Oregon; Kalama and Vancouver, Washington; and Portland and Astoria, Oregon. At each of these celebrations distinctive programs will be given setting forth the development of the country tributary to the Columbia.

The watershed of the Columbia river and its tributaries embraces an area of approximately 250,000 square miles in the United States and an additional 50,000 in British Columbia, making a territory larger than the German empire and larger than the entire New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia combined.

A Double Deception

By EUNICE BLAKE

Estelle Auchincloss awoke at 11 o'clock in the morning with a sickening sensation. She had been out every night for a week at some function, slept the greater part of the day and at evening prepared for the next round of gaiety.

"Oh, how tired I am of it! I wish I were poor. I could then find something to occupy me. Being rich, I can't."

Miss Auchincloss lay in bed a long while thinking, then arose with a scheme she had resolved to put in practice. She wrote an advertisement that a young woman recently graduated from college would like a position as governess in a family living in the country. Within a week she had purchased a railroad ticket to Hilton to be inspected and was offered and accepted a situation under the name of Maria Bristow.

Now, it happened that Jack Larrabee, the son of the lady who had engaged the governess, when the negotiations were in progress peeped through the half open door and recognized a person he had seen and admired as one of the most graceful dancers in the social world. He had never been presented to her and was sure that she did not know him.

"I think I know a trick worth two of that," he said and got out of the way before the applicant had seen him.

There were in the Larrabee family, besides Jack, Mrs. Larrabee, a widow, and two little daughters. There was a chauffeur who sometimes acted as gardener. The morning after Miss Auchincloss entered upon her duties she saw a man in overalls outside pruning the flower beds for spring use. Being fond of flowers, she went out to ask him some questions as to what he was doing.

"I didn't know," she said, "that Mrs. Larrabee employed two men on the place. I supposed the chauffeur did the gardening."

"So he does, miss, but this spring the missis has hired me."

Miss Auchincloss asked a number of questions about what kind of flowers he was intending to put in, then returned to the house and soon after began work with the children at their lessons.

Now, Jack Larrabee, in order to play gardener without being given away, told his mother that he was tired of the social whirl and anxious to make a man of himself. He proposed to take the position of gardener for a gardener's pay, but he stipulated that he should do so incognito. His being a member of the family was not to be divulged. His sisters were not only charged not to give the secret away, but rewards were offered them if they refrained from doing so.

Occasionally the chauffeur was bribed by Jack to plead illness, and Jack took his place at the wheel. Jack also at times bribed his sisters when the time came for the afternoon ride to do something else, thus giving him an opportunity to make love to the governess.

It was not to be expected that this twofold deception could be kept up indefinitely, though Miss Auchincloss had a better chance at the problem than Mr. Larrabee, she being some distance from home. Jack by incessant watchfulness kept the ball a-rolling for a month, though he met with a number of narrow escapes. He was disappointed, however, in not being able to break down the barrier that separated him from one who was supposed to be of a higher station. Miss Auchincloss, though evidently kindly disposed toward him, required him at all times to keep his distance.

One day when Jack was driving the governess in a runabout they met two of his friends, Ned Morgan and Charlie Phelps. A chauffeur's apparel is not necessarily much different from that of an ordinary person, and the young men thought little of seeing Jack at the wheel.

"Hold on, Jack!" cried one of them. "I wish to speak to you."

Jack put on more speed. His friends, one of whom had recognized the society belle, Miss Auchincloss, turned and followed. Seeing an opportunity by taking a different road to meet the couple again, they turned and by some rapid driving succeeded in their design. On meeting again they signaled Jack to stop and enforced his doing so by occupying his side of the road.

Phelps greeted the governess with a hearty "Good morning, Miss Auchincloss!" while Morgan apologized to Jack for stopping him on the ground that he had a message for him.

Jack looked at Miss Auchincloss, and Miss Auchincloss looked at Jack, but neither said anything till they had got rid of the two men. Then Jack said:

"My secret is out."

"It's been out for some time."

"What! You have known who I am?"

"Ever since I came to the house. You may have forgotten that I danced in the same figure with you at Mrs. Perkins' cotillion."

"I recognized you, but I fancied that you didn't remember me."

"Well," rejoined Miss Auchincloss, "my playing governess and your playing gardener are finished. I think we had better return to our own selves."

"I am of your opinion. There is too much work for the wages."

But Jack prevailed upon her to defer her going for awhile longer, which gave him further opportunity to do his courting, and when she left they were engaged.

Worth Knowing.
One of the quickest known ways of dispelling a headache is to give some of the muscles—those of the legs, for instance—a little hard, sharp work to do. The reason is obvious. Muscular exertion flushes the parts engaged in it, and so depletes the brain. When your head aches take a stiff walk or a short bicycle ride.

When earthquakes occur, the animals are usually observed to exhibit unusual troubles. In some cases they give numerous warnings of danger locally while in others they flee. For instance, horses set up an unusual whinny whenever a seismic shock is near. In Central America, ants flee from houses, and in this that they follow the animals and leave the so as to escape danger. It has been observed that birds fly to the air, but this without the earthquake took place at the time when the shocks were produced. In the duration of the earthquake, dogs howl just before an

Panama-Pacific International Exposition

Marvelously Fulfills Every Pledge and Promise Made by San Francisco

GLORIOUS INAUGURATION OF WORLD'S GREATEST INTERNATIONAL CELEBRATION ASSURES CONTINUED SUCCESS

WITH an attendance for the first week greater than the combined attendance for the same period of the world's expositions at Chicago and St. Louis, the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco has started on a career that the most conservative judgments predict will break all records for exposition success.

The exposition opened on February 20, 100 per cent complete structurally, and opened to an attendance of one quarter of a million people. From every state of the United States and from the nations of the world came critical visitors to pass on the merits of the celebration that had been so widely heralded. They found nothing to criticize. Every claim made by San Francisco and the exposition was fulfilled. It is safe to say that not a single visitor went away disappointed. The result has been that the advertisement by word of mouth, and by letters home and to friends—the most powerful form of advertisement—has been given the exposition. In consequence the transportation companies report a constantly increasing booking for travel to San Francisco both by land and water.

Exceptionally low rates have been given by the transportation companies from all points within the United States to San Francisco, offering many people an opportunity that could not otherwise be taken, of combining a pleasure journey to the exposition with a sightseeing tour through California and the West.

A feature of the exposition that has called for universal comment is the "action" that marks exhibits, every exhibit capable of operation by steam or electricity being shown in motion.

A flood of inquiries concerning rates and hotel accommodations has been received by the information bureau of the exposition since the news of its successful opening was flashed around the world, all such inquiries being given prompt attention. San Francisco and California are fulfilling their host duties and living up to the reputation the West has always had for hospitable treatment for the stranger.

DURING A LULL IN THE OPENING DAY CEREMONIES AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

The Panama-Pacific International exposition was opened by a wireless spark, dispatched by President Woodrow Wilson at Washington, and caught on the tendrils of a wireless aerial on the lofty Tower of Jewels at the exposition. Instantly the power was released in the mighty Palace of Machinery and the portals of the exhibit palaces opened. The scene is on the grand stand after the ceremonies had ended, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, Gov. Hiram Johnson of California, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, President C. C. Moore of the exposition and a notable group of visiting dignitaries being seen in animated discussion of the epochal event. In the press box the correspondents are seen flashing to the world the news that the exposition had opened.

WHEN A QUARTER OF A MILLION OF PEOPLE INAUGURATED

THE VAST PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO

Transportation reports show that every state in the United States and most of the nations of the world were represented in the great throng of 250,000 people who inaugurated the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco on February 20. This picture, showing the mighty South gardens, gives a glimpse of a small fraction of the opening day throng. In the first five days of its progress the exposition had an attendance larger than the combined totals of the Chicago and St. Louis expositions and the ratio continues in a degree to justify predictions of the most spectacular success for the exposition.

THE FOUNTAIN AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION THAT SYMBOLIZES THE BUILDING OF THE PANAMA CANAL

The labor that went into the building of the Panama canal is symbolized in the Fountain of Energy, by A. Stirling Calder. This heroic sculpture stands in the center lagoon of the three lagoons of the South Gardens and faces the main entrance gates. The waters were first released on opening day, February 20, coincidentally with the opening of the portals of the exhibit palaces and by the same means: the electric spark transmitted across the continent when President Woodrow Wilson opened the great exposition at San Francisco by wireless.

THE "ZONE," THE PLAYGROUND OF THE PEOPLE OF THE WORLD AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

Through the center of the Zone, the amusement section at the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, runs a broad avenue three thousand feet in length. It is not unusual for this entire avenue to be jammed with entertainment seekers who are busy patronizing the one hundred concessions on the Zone. An exact reproduction of the Panama canal is one of the popular and instructive features, there being a constant line both day and night of people eager to see the workings of the miniature canal. The premier showmen of America have assembled here their finest offerings of amusement, edification and instruction.

THE MIGHTY COURT OF THE UNIVERSE, THE HUB OF THE ARCHITECTURAL SCHEME AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

All visitors to the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco at some time during their stay at the exposition make their pilgrimage through the Court of the Universe. This is the largest court on the grounds and is the central radiating unit of the architectural and ground plans. Noble sculptured groups embellish it, the two Homeric groups—the Nations of the East and the Nations of the West—surmounting the giant arches at the east and west portals. By night the beauty of the court is enhanced by the flood lighting effects.

TRADE BOARD MEETS TONIGHT, 8:00 P. M., IF QUORUM COMES

Unless the weather continues too disagreeable, the usual weekly meeting of the board of trade will be held this evening at 15 Orange avenue. Two or three more or less important matters require attention, but nothing of an exceptionally interesting nature is expected to come up.

"ROSE OF THE RANCHO" TODAY AT THE CRYSTAL

This afternoon and evening at the Crystal theater the "Rose of the Rancho" is the feature. As its name suggests, the "Rose of the Rancho" is a western story, strongly tinged with Mexican scenes and situations depicting Spanish characteristics. The date of the play's setting is 1850, a time when outlawry was the rule in California, especially in the lower section where the plot of the play is laid. The "Rose of the Rancho" is said to be a really high-class picture.

Queer English Ceremonies.

Some three hundred English gentlemen are now installed in the position of chief citizen of their respective towns and boroughs, remarks the London Chronicle. In some districts old world ceremonies are observed. The mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is inducted by placing upon his finger an ancient ring, worn by his predecessors for many centuries. At Cheltenham the mayor is presented with a gold-headed mace; at Grantham the new chief citizen is tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer; at Dunstable the time-honored custom of bumping is observed, and at Bournemouth the new mayor receives a solemn kiss from his predecessor.

The Honor of the Boy Scout.

The most important scout virtue is that of honor. Indeed, that is the basis of all scout virtues and is closely allied to that of self-respect. When a scout promises to do a thing on his honor, he is bound to do it. The honor of a scout will not permit of anything but the highest and the best and the manliest. The honor of a scout is a sacred thing, and cannot be lightly set aside or trampled on.—From the Boy Scout Handbook.

Good and Evil.

We often try in vain to cut up our errors by the roots, to fight evil hand to hand on its own ground, where it has us at a disadvantage, whereas our most sure way to victory is by developing and fortifying the good that is in us. We have but a certain measure of strength and activity; as much of this as is added to the good is taken from the evil.—Mme. Swetchine.

MARK AT 4:00 P. M. TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 2.—At 4:00 o'clock this afternoon the population of the United States reaches and passes the 100,000,000 mark. Please do not go around seeking promiscuous information. Seek geographer C. D. Sloane of the census bureau and he will tell you all about it. There is a little difference between his figures and those of J. S. McCoy, actuary of the treasury department, who says that we have gone 16,000 over the hundred million mark, but the disagreement arises from the different systems of computation employed by the two statisticians. For information regarding methods, kindly address above named gentlemen, Washington, D. C.

He Had It.

In honor of a visit to his plant by the governor of the state an automobile manufacturer once had a complete car assembled in something like seven minutes. Some weeks later, after this feat was heralded in the daily papers, the phone rang vigorously. "Is it true that you assembled a car in seven minutes at your factory?" the voice asked. "Yes," came the reply. "Why?" "Oh, nothing," said the calm inquirer, "only I've got the car."

African Dinosaurs.

In the Mesozoic era, say paleontologists, the gigantic beasts called dinosaurs reigned supreme on the earth. The most remarkable of these animals have been found in the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains. But recently many bones of dinosaurs have been discovered in German East Africa, and some of them have been mounted in the natural history museum. These, according to Professor Fraas, belonged to a gigantic dinosaur which must have measured a length of 48 feet. This dinosaur has been named the giant dinosaur. But it is not quite so gigantic as the atherosaurus, which Professor Fraas estimates had a length of 50 feet. Mr. J. Youth's Companion.
